MISTAKEN USE OF RED CROSS STAMPS

They Are No Good as Postage and Will Not Be So Accepted

Yesterday was another busy day at the postoffice, but the rush of outgoing mail is now letting up a little. Most of the packages for the eastern states have already been dispatched. It is still sufficiently early to send Christmas mail to local and California points, however. The incoming mail is just now at its heaviest point and will probably be large the rest of this week. On account of the bad weather in the east there has been a slight delay and yesterday's mail, though a heavy one, was lighter than it would have been had everything arrived. The delayed mail will probably get in today.

There seems to be a misapprehension on the part of some regarding the use of the Red Cross stamps. Postmaster Mullen reports that a large number of parcels and post cards have been mailed with the Red Cross stamps on them, but lacking the usual postoffice stamp which is of course necessary. There is no connection whatsoever between the Red Cross society and the postoffice department and while the department offers no objection to the use of the charity stamps in connection with the usual amount of postage, those stamps alone represent nothing to the postoffice department. Where it has been possible, parcels and cards so stamped have been returned to the sender; where this is not possible, they will find their way in due time to the dead letter office.

Though it may not be generally known, some countries refuse to transmit mail matter through their office to which are affixed stamps of any kind excepting the regulation postage stamps.

The following paragraph from the December Postal Guide relates to that subject: "Postmasters are notified that the following named countries refuse to admit to their mails articles bearing non postage 'Christmas' stamps or other adhesive charity stamps or labels: Great Britain, Orange River Colony, Southern Rhodesia, Transvaal. Germany admits articles bearing such stamps if affixed to the back, but not when attached to the face."

WILL BUILD

MORE RAIN

Monday afternoon and much of that night, a quiet rain fell here. It was not such a souther as fell a short time ago, but was far more than was needed and had the effect of making the roads and streets sloppy again. According to Mr. Simmons, the precipitation was about a quarter of an inch. To be exact, 23.

HOLIDAY VACATION

The normal closes today for the holiday vacation and will resume work again on January 3rd. Quite a number of the students will leave tonight for their homes in different parts of the territory to spend Christmas. A few live so far away that it is hardly worth while to make the trip. For the benefit of those who will remain here, there will be a Christmas tree at the dining hall tomorrow evening.

WILL QUIT BUSINESS

It is understood that on the first of the year George Boston, proprietor of the Corner saloon, will go out of business, the building having been rented by the Southwest Investment company to a man from San Francisco, who will continue the business. Mr. Boston has not fully decided upon his future plans.
